Troubadour Band Rehearses Songs For Annual Show

Beattie and Wenzl Direct
Orchestra for Troubadour's
Production

The Troubadour orchestra, under the direction of Dan Beattie and George Wenzl, is creating a great deal of enthusiasm among the cast and choruses of the show. This year's production will be the first to have its own orchestra, composed entirely of students, and as much a part of the show as the cast and choruses. Musicians will be qualified to membership in Troubadours after serving in two shows.

Members of the orchestra are Gerry Smith, Edgar Bowser, and Filadelfo Irreverre, saxophones; Max Smith, Clifford Schopmeyer, Herman Friedlander, Leon Gerber, and James Frasier, violins; Rollin Jones, cello; Rex Nelson, trumpet; Burke Drury, drum; Charles Turpin, banjo; George Kerve, tuba.

This orchestra is the result of a long-felt need on the part of the Troubadour organization. Dan Beattie started in to make it a reality during Troubadour elections last May. A notice was published in The Hatchet asking for volunteers, and with those applicants as a nucleus, Beattie and Wenzl, who was named director, and Elizabeth Sherier, organized the orchestra. Practices were begun immediately after the opening of school. For the past ten days they have been working on the actual music of "Happy Landings."

Prior to last year the cast and choruses had to wait until the two dress rehearsals before practicing with the orchestra. The current show has already been put together, with the choruses, cast and orchestra all working together, and the directors believe that the results will show in the finest, most finished performance ever put on by the Troubadours.

Mortar and Pestle Club Entertains With Smoker

The Mortar and Pestle Club entertained Dean Briggs, Professor Smith, and Professor Witt at a smoker last Tuesday.

An unique form of entertainment was offered in the person of Samuel Botner, Panama Negro, sometimes known as the human ostrich. "Bernardo the Great" entertained his audience by swallowing pine, chewing razor blades, and eating the remains of broken electric light bulbs. "Unsterilized" needles ejected through his flesh evoked no response.

By virtue of possessing ticket No. 329, William Mannheim enjoyed turkey on Thanksgiving Day.

Band Makes Hit At North Dakota Varsity Contest

Forty-three Men Appeared in Griffith Stadium

The newly organized University band made its first public appearance at the George Washington-North Dakota football game Thanksgiving Day, and distinguished itself by appropriate rendition of "The Gridiron King," "Under the Double Eagle," "National Emblem March," "El Capitan," our own School anthem, "Hail to the Buff," and other selections. The appearance of the band in its Colonial style blue uniforms created a sensation as it marched into the stadium prior to the opening of the game, and the playing at frequent intervals throughout the game was enthusiastically received by the crowd.

The organization will next be seen on December 12 when it will provide entertainment in the George Washington cheering section at the charity football game to be played at Griffith Stadium when the 1931 Rose Bowl team from the University of Alabama will play against three Washington teams, George Washington, Georgetown, and the Catholic University of America.

Will Share Honors

One of the features of the day will be the competition between the Georgetown and George Washington bands, which will vie with each other in the rendition of stirring airs appropriate to the day.

Another special feature will be the joining of the Army, Navy, Marine, Georgetown, and George Washington bands in the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" and "Dixie," the latter being played by the latter.

Rally Held Before Thanksgiving Game Proves Successful

Led by University Band, Large and Enthusiastic Crowd Cheers Coach
Pislee's Talk on Wednesday

Part of George Washington's brilliant showing against the North Dakota team in the turkey day game may well be traced to the pep rally held at 4:45 last Wednesday.

This was the most successful event of its type ever held at George Washington. Led by the University Band in its first public appearance, a throng of students and professors were attracted from their usual tasks to help generate a little much-needed spirit. Coach Pislee gave a short talk stressing the superiority of the Nodaks over the Colonials both in weight and age. Cheering was under the direction of the cheer leaders and an enthusiastic response was given their efforts. Practice on the chant and the song was particularly stressed.

The success of the affair was due principally to the time at which it was held, gathering as it did, a majority of the student body near the campus at that time. The rally was carried on under the supervision of Omicron Delta Kappa.

The History Club is also sponsoring a benefit bridge party to be given Saturday evening, December 5, at 8 o'clock at the Burlington Hotel. The tickets will be 50 cents each.

Intelligentsia Select Russian Language As New Diversion To Replace Bridge

Faculty Members and Wives, State Department Officials and Newspaper Folk Comprise Ambitious Group;
Class Held Under Russian Banners

Auction bridge long ago began to fall by the wayside as some of its devotees succumbed to the charms of contract. Some of these same devotees soon tired of this simple game and so started a search for a more intellectual pastime. That is why we now have an energetic group learning Russian for want of something better to do. Yes, Russian! That awful language, the only word of which we know is "vodka."

Thus an erstwhile bridge club has been suddenly transferred into a class in Russian, which meets every Tuesday evening in Corcoran Hall.

The members of the class are Prof. and Mrs. Lowell J. Ragatz, Prof. and Mrs. William Johnstone, Prof. Paul Bowman, Prof. Allan Delbert, and Prof. Krappe, of the George Washington University. Miss Alice Brown and Miss Basset of the State Department, and Miss Fox, Miss McOmie, and Mr. Jones, newspaper folks in town are the other members of the class.

The instructor is Mrs. Albert J. Myer, a Russian baroness by birth, the wife of Major Myer, U. S. A. She has had ample experience in teaching beginners and has been highly recommended.

To make matters more complicated, the textbook, Russian Conversation Grammar, is written by Mottis, an Italian, published in English in Germany for Americans!

Buff And Blue Fighting Spirit Nets Touchdown To Tie Score With Flickertails' Strong Team

Few Substitutions Mark Game; Local Linesmen Show
Exceptionally Well in Final Game of Schedule;
Carlin and Burma Are Individual Stars

Coming from behind in the last two minutes of play to earn a glorious 6-6 tie with a team of powerful huskies nurtured on the prairies of North Dakota, the Colonials of George Washington University last Thursday gave the most brilliant exhibition of gridiron prowess witnessed by their supporters since the contest with Catholic University in 1924.

In the dying minutes of the last quarter, after George Washington had been repulsed in four valiant efforts to cross the North Dakota goal, a whirlwind series of passes and the skillful thinking of Lee Carlin was climaxed by a touchdown which sent the team's loyal adherents into shouts of ecstasy.

An exuberant cheering section of 4,000 students sensed a miraculous last minute victory, and for a tense moment it appeared that this sweet morsel would be theirs, but substitute Jack Jones' place kick met a most unwelcome gust of wind and was carried a scant 18 inches to the right of the goal post, and a 6-6 tie, a moral victory, had to suffice.

Near the end of the game Fenlon received Dablow's punt on the 44-yard line but collided with Carlin, the impact knocking the former out. Matia replaced the plucky little back, while Carlin was little the worse for the collision and resumed his place to give almost immediately a great exhibition of team direction and head-work.

With 2 minutes and 15 seconds left to play and the Nodaks leading 6-0 by virtue of a touchdown scored early in the second quarter, Carlin unleashed the greatest passing and running attack ever to wind up a local football game. Two aeriels, one to Burish and one to Matia, netted 150 yards, bringing the ball to North Dakota's 24-yard line.

Again Carlin dropped back to pass but this time four Nodaks broke through the right side of the line to seemingly smother him, one even getting his hands on the ball. Seeing a clear field to the left Lee swiftly changed his tactics, broke away from his would-be tacklers, and scampered to the four-yard line before being forced outside.

The visitors naturally expected an attempt at the line to force the ball over and so were utterly unprepared when Carlin once more tossed a pass, this one to Chambers in the touchdown zone, tying the score. When the kick on which victory hung had failed there

Engineers Plan Ball For January Eighth

Ray Heimburger Heads Dance
Committee; Engineering
Faculty Invited

Engineers of George Washington University have decided to turn social and forget their slide rules and texts for the evening of January 8 from 10 o'clock on.

The members of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers have decided upon large plans concerning orchestras, beautiful halls, refreshments, radio broadcasts, and great personages.

Plans are in the hands of Ray Heimburger, treasurer of the A. S. C. E. and chairman of the dance committee. Heimburger's efforts are supplemented by two delegates from each of the societies.

The faculty of the engineering school has been invited en masse, and Dean J. R. Lapham has consented to be present. The heads of Washington's engineering societies are being invited.

Bids for the dance will be mailed about the middle of December. They will be received by student engineers, and the leaders of the various student activities and fraternities.

Honorary Fraternity Holds Smoker for Its Eligibles

Phi Eta Sigma, honorary scholastic fraternity for freshmen men, held a smoker on Monday evening, November 23, at the Theta Delta Chi house at which eleven men of the present eligible group were guests. No pledges are being made, however, until the next meeting, which will be held at the Phi Sigma Kappa house on Monday, December 7. The names of men pledged will appear in an early issue of The Hatchet.

Striving Reporters Undergo Hardships Preparing Hatchet

While The Hatchet office was filled with Arctic frost Sunday night, and the staff prayed silently and fervently for an onslaught of good tropic heat, this issue of The Hatchet was slowly and painfully evolved. Its cost has not yet been reckoned. No one can say how many sniffly colds, how many frozen fingers, how many "regusted" workers have resulted from the frigid atmosphere in all its fury.

A shivering, blue-lipped typist called pitifully for an extra warm, woolly coat, as her stiff fingers froze to the key. A stalwart male lost his manly bearing, as with swiftly chattering teeth he begged humbly for a good hot cup of coffee. The staff, staggering out into the brisk air of early Monday morning, sighed happily over the nice, warm outdoors. Such, dear readers, are the almost unbelievable hardships which the willing martyrs on The Hatchet staff undergo to get this paper to you bright and early Tuesday morning.

Give the "Students" a Chance

It has not been the practice in this column to take the student body to task for petty matters of discipline, but recent complaints regarding conduct of students in the Library have been so numerous that we feel justified in printing this bit of pleading.

There are many who find the University Library to be their only study room, and there is no reason why it should not be kept fit for that purpose. It is the universal custom of libraries to observe the rule of silence, in keeping with the spirit of study and research that they symbolize.

Apparently this rule is not being observed. Instead of being able to spend a few quiet minutes, or hours, in preparing daily assignments or reviewing for examinations we are confronted with talking, laughter, and general round table discussion which eliminates all thought of study.

Enough difficulty has been experienced in the evenings because of the disturbance made by glass clubs, band, and troubadour rehearsals. It is a lamentable fact that these organizations do not have a gathering place of their own, located in a spot designed to minimize the noise which might reach other buildings on the campus. While there is no present remedy for these disturbances, the individual can help immeasurably by remembering the purposes for which the Library was established.

Are You Keeping December 12 Open

To Attend The Alabama Charity Fray?

Washington's much discussed charity game has been an extremely successful undertaking so far, but one very important aspect remains to be considered. To quote Owen D. Young, chairman of the Committee on Mobilization of Relief Resources of the President's Organization on Unemployment Relief, in a call to colleges and schools:

"We must have spectators as well as players at these games. It is as spectators that the overwhelming majority of the students will have their part in achieving the purpose for which these games will be played. My call was issued to all students, not merely to the members of the football squads alone. It is to the spectators that the unemployed must look for the assistance to which they are so well entitled.

From every point of view these games should be the most largely attended that have ever been played in this country. I am told, indeed, that it will be football beyond that which marked the regular schedules. In the number and the spirit of the people who attend them they ought to be great demonstrations of our determination to meet the emergency. The register of the turnstiles ought to run into the millions."

The unusual attraction—three Washington elevens against the Alabama Rose Bowl Champions—will attract thousands, but the students and alumni should put forth every effort to make the contribution of George Washington University worthy of her traditions.

WORLD NEWS

BY JAMES COBERLY

Peace is still hoped for in Manchuria. That was the sentiment early in the week, and although it was dispelled somewhat by rumors of further advances by Japanese troops toward Chinchow and renewed fighting in Tientsin, the foreign office and Ambassador DeBuchi maintained that no attacks were being planned. At present a force of about 10,000 Japanese is encamped within 30 miles of Chinchow but both the League and Secretary Stimson have received assurances that it means to advance no further. Secretary Stimson's statements in regard to this latest development drew upon him severe rebukes by the Japanese government.

National politics fill the air these days as Congress is preparing to convene in what should prove one of the most interesting sessions in history. The Democrats were assured control of the House when they won the election in the fourteenth district of Texas, formerly represented by Harry M. Wurzbach, Republican. The fight for Speaker goes merrily on with Representatives Tilson and Snell, Republicans, sparring to decide that Snell will be beaten by the Democrat, Representative Garner of Texas.

Chairman Raskob of the Democratic party reopened the ranks of the party when he mailed a questionnaire to all subscribers to the 1928 campaign, asking their views on the liquor situation. Some eighty thousand were asked whether they favored the repeal, modification, or silence. Results are not known but the dry wing of the party began to gird itself to fight the issue.

Rejection of the wage cut proposed by railroad heads resulted in an ultimatum to union officials that some agreement must be reached by December 8 when a joint meeting of the representatives of capital and labor is to be held in Chicago.

WHO'S WHO ON THE FACULTY

Professor Willard Hayes Yeager

Professor Willard Hayes Yeager, chairman of the executive committee of Columbian College and executive officer of the Public Speaking Department, came to George Washington University in 1923, three years after he received his master of arts degree from Ohio State University, to establish a Department of Public Speaking as provided in an endowment by Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew.

Renowned for his contagious laugh, he receives a very good report at the hands of his students, who are far from loath to praise him. Tall and slender, he is possessed of a poise which places even the lowliest and most timid of freshmen at ease. He does not like to talk about himself, and would rather limit his conversation to his immediate projects of which he speaks as though they are of but slight importance.

His desk is always buried beneath a host of important looking documents which usually concern a biography he is writing of Chauncey M. Depew, "America's most famous after-dinner speaker." This summer when Professor Yeager called at the residence of the late Senator Depew he was offered the freedom of Depew's monumental correspondence, which he packed and shipped to his office in Building H. This material is a gift to the University by Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew. He thinks that the biography will be at least two years in the writing, and seems to be enjoying the tremendous task of ascertaining the thousands of manuscripts, photographs, and letters of the late Senator.

Several public speaking textbooks, which Professor Yeager wrote in collaboration with Professor William F. Sanford of the University of Illinois, are used in America's greatest universities—Notre Dame, Northwestern, Virginia and almost 150 others. Recently 750 copies of this school book were shipped to the Philippines.

Professor Yeager was born July 6, 1897, in Louisville, Ohio. He attended grammar school and high school at Wooster, Ohio. He received his A. B. in 1919, and his A. M. in 1923 at Ohio State. He taught public speaking at Mingo Junction High School in Ohio, and one year at the Parkersburg High School. He served in the public speaking department of Ohio State from 1923 to 1927, when he accepted a position at the U. of Illinois in the Department of Public Speaking of which he was acting head in 1928-29. He played a prominent part in the organization of the Western Conference Debate League.

Periodical Articles

Listed By Library

John Russell Mason, acting librarian of the University, has noted the following articles as those selected by a council of librarians to be some of the outstanding ones found in the November periodicals. All the magazines mentioned are to be found in the reserve section of the library.

"A Word to Women," by Albert Jay Nock, in The Atlantic Monthly. The fact that women, who own over 40 per cent of our national wealth, are not taking advantage of their unparalleled opportunity to make us a civilized nation, causes Mr. Nock to venture this suggestion.

"The Impending Radio War," by Agnes Rogers Hyde, in Harpers Magazine. A detailed study of the spending habits of 20 New York families with moderate incomes, in an article which throws light on everybody's problem of how to make both ends meet.

"The French Mind and the American," by Bernard Fay, in Harpers Magazine. Americans are puzzled—some of them are angered—by the French attitude in the financial crisis. In this timely article an able French historian interprets the French point of view for American readers.

"The Gold Crisis," by Paul Mazur, in Current History. In terms comprehensible to the lay reader, a banker explains why the world has used the gold standard, why England has abandoned it, in what circumstances America might abandon it, and what the result would be.

"Unemployment Insurance," by Frances Perkins, in Survey Graphic. The New York State Industrial Commissioner offers a plan for unemployment insurance fair to workers, employers and public; free of politics and the "dole," and on a pattern which is a proved success in the United States.

DRAMA CLUB NOTES

The first six weeks of this school year have been momentous in the history of the Drama Club of George Washington University. The Club has a new director in the person of Miss Constance Brown, who comes to the University from Cornell where she has been for three years on the direction staff of the Cornell University Theatre, the most active amateur producing group in the country, and from a season of study in Germany with the director of the Munich Artists' Theatre. Miss Brown is now lecturing twice a week on Dramatic Production to University classes. She has reorganized the Drama Club on a committee basis.

Those who saw the smooth performance of the club's first play "The Queen's Husband," that amusing comedy of Robert E. Sherwood, given at Wardman Park Theatre, November 13 and 14, probably did not realize how much hard work was done in the background by members of the club not included in the cast of fifteen students who created the characters of the play and received the applause of the audience. As far as possible, Miss Brown put the responsibilities of production upon the shoulders of her committees on Staging, Property, Costumes, Make-up, Lighting, and Off-stage effects. She herself centered on casting and directing the actors, designing the stage set, and coordinating the work of the various committees.

John Madigan, chairman of the committee on staging, won Miss Brown's gratitude by the intelligent and tireless fashion in which he managed the staging. He bought the paints, did the painting, superintended the carpentry and scene construction in general.

The large corner cupboards Miss Brown found in the basement of Wardman Park Theatre. They were built several years ago by James Reynolds (now one of the foremost stage designers in America) when he was stage designer for the Rams Head Players. After permission had been obtained from the hotel for the use of the cupboards, the question arose as to how they could be moved from the basement to the stage.

As they were too large to go through the doors inside the building, the night of the dress rehearsal saw a strange parade of a dozen members of the Drama Club—stage hands, electricians, and actors—carrying the cupboards down as iron ladder fire escape to the ground, through the woods and up the hill by the swimming pool, in through the fire doors, into the auditorium, down the aisle, across the footlights, and onto the stage.

Painting the sky drop was another feat which taxed the organizational skill of Madigan and his assistants. An old drop belonging to the University was to be cleared of its unnatural and fantastic forest scene and repainted as infinite distance. When it was laid on the workshop floor and scrubbed, the result was a sea of mud. Before it could be painted the drop had to be carried outside, laid on the ground, and cleansed with the help of the fire hose.

The assembling and custody of suitable properties involved considerable work and responsibility. To Theodore Alexander and Leonard Day was entrusted the diplomatic task of making friends with those who had the coveted things to lend. The piece de resistance of the scene was the Buhl table which occupied the center of the stage. It was a real museum piece worth hundreds of dollars and gave genuine distinction to the scene. After obtaining it from the Garber Galleries, Miss Brown entrusted it for safe keeping to Day and Alexander, whose chief business it was to keep overenthusiastic actors when "in fine frenzy rolling," from putting their feet on its inlaid beauties.

Much of the colorfulness of the scene was due to the taste of those responsible for the costumes. Mal Sykes, as mistress of costumes, took faithful care of the costumes entrusted to her and used her needle in shortening the king's coat and taking in the princess's wedding gown—designed originally no doubt for a princess of more buxom European type—and in fashioning the numerous orders and medals worn by the stage nobility.

As chairman of the make-up committee, Florence Jacobs had charge of the make-up supplies and rendered excellent service. In former years actors of the Drama Club have been made up for the stage by professionals called in at the last minute. It was Miss Brown's idea that training in make-up is part of the production program. After the committee worked faithfully days in advance the members of the cast were most patient in lending their countenances for experimentation. The results achieved were eminently satisfactory, being both effective and entirely natural as seen from the front of the house.

As electrician, Hazen Shea achieved good effects despite grave limitation of equipment. Almost the only accident in the production was one that affected his work and threw the king's face in shadow on the first night of performance—an occurrence for which Shea was in no way responsible and which he guarded against in the second production.

As president of the Drama Club, Phyllis Mills worked very efficiently under Miss Brown's direct supervision, helping in a thousand important matters; in reading plays and selecting one, in casting parts, in scheduling and calling rehearsals, in assembling a technical force, and in holding the prompt book.

Basketball Tourney Resumed This Week

Acacia, Delta Tau Delta, Kappa Alpha Play First Games

The second round of the Interfraternity basketball tourney will be opened with four teams playing tonight and four more shooting it out Friday evening.

Acacia plays Delta Tau Delta in the first game tonight, while the Kappa Alpha tossers will fight it out with the Kappa Sigma quint in the final fracas. The Deltas, K. A., and Acacia will have their first chance to show their wares in the tourney. The Kappa Sig quint lost its first game in a close battle with S. P. E.

Acacia will play again on Friday night in a game with Phi Sigma Kappa. The Phi Sigs won their opener easily from Sigma Chi. In the second game S. P. E. plays S. A. E. in what is expected to be an interesting battle if past performances can be taken into consideration. The S. A. E. basketballers will bear close watching after giving Sigma Nu, the defending champions, a close battle in their first game.

Here, MEN,
man's smoke

A PIPEFUL of good tobacco is distinctly a man's smoke. The women (long may they waver!) have taken over most of our masculine privileges. But pipe smoking still belongs to us.

In every walk of life you'll find that the men at the top are pipe smokers. And most college men agree that the pipe offers the rarest pleasures a man could ask of his smoking.

When you smoke a pipe, be sure you choose the tobacco that will give you the greatest enjoyment. In 42 out of 54 colleges Edgeworth is the favorite. You can buy Edgeworth wherever good tobacco is sold. Or for a special sample packet, write to Larus & Bro. Co., 105 S. 22d St., Richmond, Va. Sample is free.

EDGEWORTH SMOKING TOBACCO

Edgeworth is a blend of fine old burleys, with its natural flavor enhanced by Edgeworth's distinctive and exclusive eleven-step process. Buy Edgeworth anywhere in two forms—Edgeworth Ready Rubbed and Edgeworth Plug Slice. All sizes, 15¢ per packet, package to $1.50 pound humidifier tin.

Warner System and Brilliant Strategy Feature Holiday Contest

By A Reporter

It was a typical football day, weather chilly, crowd colorful and enthusiastic, team on edge, all contributing to what turned out to be one of the most brilliant football games played in the city this season.

That band surprised me as I suppose it surprised everyone else. Of course a lot was expected in the way of uniforms, musical ability, etc., but the showing that this newly organized student band made in the game with North Dakota was one that the school should be justly proud of, considering the short time in which the group has had to get organized.

For once I attended a football contest in cold November where the game itself far overshadowed any happenings in the grandstand or on the sidelines. I suppose some observant soul could write a tale concerning some incident or incidents that occurred in the crowd present at the fray, but I was one of the many who were completely carried away by the tempestuousness and the tenacity of both elevens, and by that indomitable will

Five Bands To Play At Alabama Contest

Army, Navy, and Marine Bands Secured for Charity Game Next Week

Five bands will parade upon the field at Griffith Stadium on December 12 when the three local universities meet the Alabama Rose Bowl champions of 1930 in a benefit game for the unemployed of Washington.

The Army, Navy, and Marine bands have been secured for the occasion, and in addition, the George Washington and Georgetown University bands will contribute local color.

The three service bands will join in the playing of the "Star-Spangled Banner" in front of the President's box at 1:45 p. m.

Advance sale of tickets for the game are: general admission, $1.50; reserved seats, $2; and box seats, $2.50. Tickets may be procured at Griffith Stadium, Spalding's, and at any of the three universities.

to win that seemed to permeate the teams and the whole mass of humanity present. Incidentally, the score shows the result of the clash between two such indomitable wills.

From the beginning it looked sad for the Colonials as the Nodaks by means of powerful spinner plays and fake reverses plowed their way down the field until early in the second quarter a pass netted their lone score. Due credit must be given the boys from Northern Dakota as it was a powerful, well-coached outfit that played George Washington. Using the Warner system, the powerful unbalanced line coupled with a set of shifty and hefty backs reeled off yards during the entire game, keeping the Buff and Blue gridironers and their supporters on their toes.

A number of times, I was so excited, I didn't think to count them, the Colonials fought their way into the Sioux's territory to bring the solid mass of George Washington rooters to its feet, pleading hysterically for a touchdown. And every time, but the last, our footballers were successfully repulsed.

Finally, just after doughty little Johnny Fenlon got knocked out, that wonder, Lee Carlin, pulled one of the smartest stunts ever witnessed on local football fields. The beautiful part about his exhibition was that he had the ability to back up his brain work. With a conglomeration of Flickertails pounding down upon him and he ready to heave a pass, he calmly wormed his way, somehow, through them and tore

Pep Rally Boosts Big Charity Game

Thirty Thousand Expected to View Football Classic on December 12

According to Coaches Mills, Bergman, and Pixlee, Alabama's Rose Bowl team of last year is going to find the going pretty tough on December 12 when it comes to Griffith Stadium, meeting George Washington, Catholic University, and Georgetown, respectively, in twenty-minute periods. The local mentors, who aired their opinions last Tuesday before a crowd of 500 in a pep meeting at the District Building, all seemed confident of giving the Southerners a stiff battle and the charity crowd plenty of fine football.

Dutch Bergman, C. U. coach, expressed the sentiments of his colleagues and the crowd when he said that "The Alabama aggregation is the strongest ever to play in Washington," and added that "they will need little sympathy because of the large number of men supplied by the local opposition."

All three men, introduced by Dr. George C. Havenner of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, made a strong plea to the people of Washington to turn out for the game and expressed hope of a crowd numbering 30,000, the biggest ever to witness a local grid contest.

John Lyon of Catholic University, Maurice Dubofsky of Georgetown, and Frank Blackstone of George Washington, as leaders of their respective teams, spoke of the desire and willingness of their team members to aid in the charity contest, while a cheer leader from each institution guaranteed strong representation and plenty of noise from the respective student bodies.

down the sideline for what seemed to me a sure touchdown, but wasn't. And now came the sheer brilliance on the part of Carlin when he called for a pass for that touchdown that was so sorely needed.

The ball was snapped. The North Dakotans, expecting another line plunge, bunched together ready to stop it, were completely outguessed when Chambers coolly tucked the pass from Carlin into his arms and gleefully romped a few feet over the line and touched the ball to the ground, gaining those six most-needed points for George Washington University.

Sport Axe

BY GORDON V. POTTER

'Twas a moral victory over North Dakota, and I think everyone will agree on that point. Coming from behind in the last quarter to score a most remarkable touchdown, and entering the game as the underdog are a few more salient facts that help to prove the statement made above.

It was odd that the Colonials pushed the leather deep into the Nodak's territory five times before they scored. Four times did the Buff and Blue get within the 15-yard mark, try line bucks for two or three downs, then a pass, only to lose the ball to their opponents. Carlin's masterful move in the closing minutes of the game, passing immediately after a single line plunge, leads me, and others, too, to believe that mismanagement occurred in the earlier part of the contest.

A major part of the fray consisted of a kicking duel between the outfits, with George Washington coming out on top every time. Lee Carlin, averaging 50 yards to a kick, punted a total of 440 yards in the four quarters. That marvelous surprise play of a punt from close formation in the third quarter netted 75 yards for the Buff and Blue.

An item appeared on the sports page of one of the metropolitan sheets, recently, stating that a Chair of Football had been established at the University of Pennsylvania with a title of Professor attached. This move entails an extensive program of intramural gridiron contests. The Greek's council and the Athletic Department might consider this a suggestion.

One of the outstanding features of the play of the Flickertails was their exceptionally hard and accurate blocking. A number of the Washington dailies mentioned this fact and it certainly did contribute immensely to the success that the North Dakotans achieved.

I have received another letter from Betty Emano with much appreciated remarks and suggestions concerning the column and The Hatchet in general. I have no excuses to make for my mistakes in grammar—but sometimes one is in a hurry—that's not an excuse, however. As for the proof reading—The Hatchet always needs a few good ones. Thanks for the compliment.

Katherine Wessels

The young lady pictured above is scheduled to attract your eyes many times in the forthcoming production, "Happy Landings," where she will take the part of a sweet young co-ed. This is her first appearance in University musical or dramatic circles, but it is reported that she took part in many plays at Bryn Mawr School in Baltimore and the directors of Trobadours guarantee that Katherine's performance promises a treat for her audience. She entered George Washington University in February, and is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Joseph Danzansky

"Happy Landings" is the second Troubadour show which boasts Joe Danzansky in the leading role. Last year he played the title role in "Good Gracious Godfrey," and just a few weeks ago was seen in action as Phipps, the butler, in "The Queen's Husband," the Drama Club's latest production. Joe starred in high school drama, too, serving as president of the Central High School Dramatic Association in 1930, and taking part in three spring plays and two fall revues. He is a sophomore, and a member of Phi Alpha.

Chinese Conditions Discussed Before Delta Phi Epsilon

Lloyd A. Free Addresses Foreign Services at Second Smoker of the Year

The G. W. Chapter of Delta Phi Epsilon held its second semi-monthly professional meeting of the year at the S. A. E. house on Monday night, November 14.

Speaking before a large gathering, including active members of the local chapter and guests, Lloyd A. Free, who has just returned from China after a year of teaching at the University of Yenching and after much observation of conditions existing in the provinces of interior China, gave a clear and direct description of the economic relations between the United States and China, and leading world powers, including Japan, the United States, Great Britain, and Germany. Mr. Free, who has been sent to China for the Yenching foundation and Princeton University, thought that, in spite of China's present unrest, she is slated to become the most important country economically in the Pacific group.

One thing that must be brought about, however, is more widespread education, and a firm leader of the Russian government type to weld the provinces now ruled by war lords into a United China. This thickly populated country is not rich in natural resources as many people suppose, but her value to the United States as a market at the present time and her potential market possibilities lie not only in manufactured products, but mainly in raw materials, kerosene, tobacco and cotton being some of the chief exports from the United States to China.

Money Invested in China
Japan has in all probability the largest amount of money invested in China and carries on an extensive trade there. As shown in the past the Chinese boycott of Japanese goods can become an important economic weapon in bringing Japan to terms and it is an evidence of nationalism. Arthur Beach, president of Eta Chapter, closed the meeting with the announcement that the usual refreshments were being served.

A fortnight earlier, at a similar meeting, the speaker for the evening was Major Herbert E. Marshburn, now a member of the local chapter and at one time Military Attache with the diplomatic staff in Mexico City and at present instructor at the Army War College in Washington. Major Marshburn, having traveled extensively and necessarily being cognizant of any and all conditions throughout the world that might involve the armed forces of the United States, gave a very interesting talk on the present situation in Manchuria with particular reference to the Russian phase of the tangle.

Tatum, Fred Hunt, Bill Potter, and Eben Northrop.

Lois Gray attended the Fall Formal at Gettysburg on Friday evening and the Hood College formal on Saturday evening.

Bertha Bier was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Howard U. Miller of Reading, Pa., over Thanksgiving holidays.

Sigma Chi held open house Thursday after the G. D. K. tea-dance. Big-time gambling, songs, and games featured an evening of novel entertainment.

Fighting Colonials

Tie Strong Nodaks

remained time for only a few more plays and the game ended with the ball practically in midfield.

North Dakota's touchdown came early in the second quarter as the result of a series of unstoppable reverses and spinners by Burma and Knauf, which took the ball to the Colonials' 16-yard line. Burma battered his way through tackle for four more, and a lateral pass, Burma to Wexler, accounted for the touchdown. Knauf missed the try for the extra point, paving the way for the tie.

The first quarter found two evenly matched teams unable to penetrate each other's forward walls with much success. Punting was the order of the day, Carlin getting the best of a number of exchanges. Late in the quarter North Dakota began the drive which ended in the touchdown early in the second period.

Visitors Threaten Again

After this score it looked for a time as if the Nodaks would batter their way to another counter. Knauf went around end for 16 yards, and Burma and Knauf smashed and tore through the line for short gains to reach the G. W. 25-yard stripe. Here an incomplete pass went over the goal line, and the Colonials took possession on the 20-yard line.

A 65-yard march down the field was halted only when two passes were unsuccessful. This was the first evidence of action on the part of the local team. Fenlon, Carter, and Carlin took the ball through the Nodaks' forward wall for two first downs, Carlin added 15 through center for another, and Fenlon and Carlin scampered on for still another. Carlin cut through left tackle for five and Carter made it first down on the 20-yard line. Fenlon went around end for five yards, but here the spell broke and incomplete passes gave the ball to North Dakota.

Squad Is rejuvenated
The second half saw a rejuvenated George Washington eleven take the field. The do or die spirit which is somewhat overdone in this football era came to the fore with a convincingness which kept the crowd of 9,000 on its feet almost every remaining moment.

Within a few minutes the Colonials started another drive which was unhappily interrupted when a pass intended for Chambers was intercepted by Knauf who was tackled on his 36-yard line. Burma broke away for 24 yards, but there was no follow-up and G. W. took the ball on the 13-yard line. An exchange of punts netted the Colonials one yard, but the visitors were soon in a less desirable position for Carlin got off a quick kick from close formation which traveled almost 75 yards.

George Washington's second thrust consisted of a pass. Carlin to Chambers, and two line thrusts which registered a first down on the North Dakota 28-yard line. A Nodak penalty, Fenlon's dash through center, and Carlin's earl to Parrish put the ball on the 14-yard line. But two plunges and two passes were unsuccessful and the visitors once again took possession.

Success on Last Try

As the last quarter got under way Knauf and Burma carried the ball to the Colonial 2-yard line where they lost it on downs. After another exchange of punts the third G. W. drive began, but this one like its predecessors ended in failure with an incomplete pass over the goal.

North Dakota punted to Fenlon and the fourth drive began. Carlin tossed a short pass to Fenlon who gained the 13-yard line. Line smashes earned seven yards, but a lateral failed and the ball went to the Nodaks on downs. Dablow punted to Fenlon who was knocked out in his collision with Carlin and the stage was set for the fifth and greatest drive of the Colonials which carried them to a tie with a team which had won eight, lost one, and tied Oregon.

FRESHNESS

— that's the thing! CAMELS are never parched or toasted

HAVE you noticed the new trend in cigarettes?—
freshness is the popular thing.

That's because a fresh cigarette, as demonstrated by Camels, is something smokers have discovered as better than anything they ever tried before.

Camels are fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack because they're made fresh to start with — blended of choice, delicately mild, sun-ripened tobaccos in which the natural moisture and fragrant flavors are vigilantly safeguarded.

The tobaccos in Camels are never parched or toasted — the Reynolds method of scientifically applying heat guarantees against that.

That's why we say with so much assurance that Camels are truly fresh. They're made fresh — not parched or toasted — and then they're kept fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack.

Try Camels' freshness for a change. Switch over for just one day, then change back — if you can.

Made FRESH — Kept FRESH

Don't remove the moisture-proof wrapping from your package of Camels after you open it. The Camel Humidor Pack is protection against perfume and powder odors, dust and germs. In offices and homes, even in the dry atmosphere of artificial heat, the Camel Humidor Pack delivers fresh Camels and keeps them right until the last one has been smoked.

Speaker Addresses Liberal Club Group

Mr. Jack Levin Gives Interesting Talk on Public Utilities

"Millions of dollars are expended each year by public utility interests to spread propaganda favorable to themselves in the press, in civic organizations, and in schools." This was the allegation which Mr. Jack Levin of the Research Staff of the People's Legislative Service supported by convincing proofs in his talk on "Power Ethics" before the Liberal Club Saturday.

Mr. Levin based his statements entirely upon material drawn from the files of the utilities themselves and upon the sworn statements of utility officials before the Federal Trade Commission. He dealt with the subject in the thorough manner which has earned him the praise of such eminent men as Senator Thomas

Walsh and Charles A. Ford, prominent historian.

One of the facts which Mr. Levin disclosed was that tens of thousands of dollars are given each year in scholarships to various colleges so that literature favorable to the utilities may be issued under college seals.

"That bully old slogan hits me just right—

... no bamboozlin' about that!"

SURE! When a word fits, you know it! "Satisfy" just fits CHESTERFIELD. A smoker picks up a package, and he likes its neat appearance—no heavy inks or odors from ink. That satisfies him.

Then he examines a Chesterfield. It is well-filled; it is neat in appearance; the paper is pure white. And that satisfies him.

He lights up. At the very first puff he likes the flavor and the rich aroma. He decides that it tastes better—neither raw nor over-sweet; just pleasing and satisfying.

Then he learns it is milder. That's another way of saying that there is nothing irritating about it. And again he's satisfied!

Satisfy—they've got to satisfy! The right tobaccos, the CHESTERFIELD kind, cured and aged, blended and cross-blended, to a taste that's right. Everything that goes into CHESTERFIELD is the best that money can buy and that science knows about. CHESTERFIELDS do a complete job of it. They Satisfy!
